How the Subathon works

Sleep Mode and quick answers

When Widdz is offline

With a positive protection floor, Sleep Mode counts down to that floor and holds; if already lower, it holds at the current value. Support still counts, with time banked until Widdz returns. The automatic floor is 6 hours on days 1-7, then 5/4/3/2/1 hours on days 8-12. From day 13 it is zero: no hold or bank, and time counts down normally. The live screen shows any operator-adjusted floor.

> LIVE SCREEN AUTHORITY
>
> The on-screen timer, multiplier and announcements show the current live state. Technical errors, duplicate events, refunds or fraud may be corrected.

Quick answers

Question	Answer
Does support count during Sleep?	Yes. With a positive floor it banks until return. With protection off, it credits the clock directly.
Can Hype Train stack with another boost?	No. Multipliers never stack; the live screen is authoritative.
What unlocks at LVL 5 / 10?	LVL 5 unlocks a Rogue Wheel. LVL 10 unlocks an SHD Tech Cache.
What are LVL 15 / 20?	CLASSIFIED. They are announced only if the community reaches them.
Why can paid Blerp time appear late?	A verified delayed chat receipt may arrive after the audio.
Why is the launch timer waiting?	The run is waiting for the first accepted time-add.
Does every Discord join add time?	No. Only a verified new recruit through the tracked invite receives the one-time +01:00.
How often do Channel Points add time?	Once per user per day, up to 60 accepted redeems per day. Each adds +01:00.
Does a Doomsday install get doubled?	No. Each verified install adds a fixed +06:00, while the campaign is enabled, up to 50 total.
Where are current goals?	The live goal rail and widdz.tv/subathon are the current public sources.
